This is a critical look at the book, "Earth: In the Beginning," by Eric N. Skousen, Ph.D. The book is written from an LDS-scientific perspective and is interesting and informative, but wrong in many instances, in my opinion. My comments begin "in the beginning" and continue on in a linear fashion, starting with the Author's Preface.

1 In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. 2 And the earth was without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. 3 And God said, Let there be light: and there was light. 4 And God saw the light, that it was good: and God divided the light from the darkness. 5 And God called the light Day, and the darkness ...

Modern flat Earth belief originated with the English writer Samuel Rowbotham (1816–1884). Based on conclusions derived from the Bedford Level experiment, Rowbotham published a pamphlet Zetetic Astronomy. He later expanded this into the book Earth Not a Globe, proposing the Earth is a flat disc centred at the North Pole and bounded along its southern edge by a wall of ice, Antarctica.
