Ed: the Sangean 909x is a highly-regarded radio, but there is an important difference in that radio compared to the PL-880, according to reviews. Although I do not own one, I have seen many reviews stating that the 909x does not have great sensitivity on the SW bands with the built-in telescoping antenna.

For shortwave and broadcast listeners, general coverage transceivers can double as both a ham radio transceiver and as a broadcast listening receiver. I often suggest a good general coverage transceiver as an option for shortwave listeners as there are many more transceivers on the market than there are dedicated tabletop receivers.. Note that general coverage transceivers could have some ...
